

Digital Object Abstraction

All methods are public. Dotted boxes are Java interfaces.
Thin dotted lines represent interface inheritance, with the arrow pointing to the superinterface. Thick solid lines represent containment, with the arrow pointing to the kind of items that are contained.
Thick dashed lines represent an indirect reference via some identifier.

